Our speaker, C. Leslie Charles will talk with us about:

Making Up, Making Over: Maximizing Community Connections, Minimizing Crisis

We are living in a time of unexpected adversity but that doesn't mean we are isolated, alone, or alienated. In fact, just the opposite is true. This is a perfect time for reaching out, reaffirming what's right in our lives, and expanding our horizons.

Considering that opportunity and adversity are constant companions now is a perfect time for engaging in self-renewal. It's time to "mine our minds" for new outlooks and actions that can make a big difference in our lives and the lives of others.

Like the lighthouse beacon that brings comfort and guidance from a stormy sea, you can use your innate wisdom to point the way toward increased confidence, inner peace, and personal well-being.

In other words, we can use today's unusual circumstances to turn us toward the simple truths, soulful connections, and social contributions we might otherwise have overlooked. By first reaching inward we can then reach out and lend our talents toward strengthening our community, one person, one decision, one act at a time.

C. Leslie Charles is an award-winning professional speaker and nationally acclaimed author. Her speaking career spans three decades and she has seven books to her credit. Leslie is no stranger to adversity. Having survived poverty, hardship, failure, and the death of an adult child, she speaks with gentle authority on how to bring out your best when you face the worst of circumstances. In this presentation she will outline what it takes to not just survive, but thrive, regardless of what life throws at you.

Join us for a fun night of networking. Make sure to bring plenty of business cards. Visitors are welcome - bring some friends!
